Irina Szabo

PARIS

Born in Paris, of Hungarian origin, IRINA SZABO did her apprenticeship in her parents' workshop - as an artist, musician, and designer.

By the age of 4, Irina was already drawing and painting. Before much longer, she was having fun making clothes for her dolls, crafting puppets, dressing them, doing body painting, and then making her own clothes as well as working as a stylist and costume designer for various artistic projects, while at the same time devoting herself to music.

Under the influence of the Italian Renaissance masters such as Leonardo da Vinci, she perfected the techniques of drawing and watercolour, but also a technique of oil painting that was developed at that time and has almost been lost nowadays. With quite a unique approach, Irina uses this XVth century technique, both in her very realistic figurative painting and in her abstract works.

Finally, the mastery of her multiple expertise has given her the desire to design her own fabrics and has led her to create her eponymous line of fashion accessories, scarves, bags, ties and jewelry.

Using Italian silk as a basis, IRINA SZABO composes a range of luxurious scarves in dazzling colours, combining refinement and abundant creativity. Each design is exclusive and comes directly from the painted works of the designer, which gives the printed fabrics luminosity, depth and incomparable life.

For the record, "Szabo" means "tailor" in Hungarian.
